

Contents

Acknowledgements

Editors

Foreword

Wayne MacDonald

About ALNAP

List of Abbreviations

Chapter One – Introduction

The Editors

Who is this book for?	3
The International Humanitarian System and trends in humanitarian assistance	8
The growth of humanitarian evaluation	20
Introduction to the case studies	25
The contributors	33
Learning from the case studies	34

Chapter Two - Somalia: towards evaluating Netherlands humanitarian assistance

Phil O'Keefe, Ted Kliet, John Kirkby and Wiert Flikkema

Background	39
Objectives of the study	41
Designing the evaluation	42
Compiling the teams and preparing for work	49
Analytical approach	51
Scope and limitations of the evaluation	53
Approaches to the evaluation of the cases	57
Fieldwork - understanding the situation on the ground	61
Getting to conclusions	66
Writing up	69
Self evaluation	76
Impact and follow-up	78

Chapter Three - Exploring the Swedish emergency relief experience in the Horn of Africa

Adrian Wood

Introduction	81
Landing the contract	82
Compiling the team	83
Familiarisation and preparing for the planning meeting	87
Meeting up	92
Field process - adjusting to reality	100
Writing up	108
Feedback and finalisation	111
Dissemination	113
Reflections and conclusions	115

Chapter Four - Evaluating Sida's complex emergency assistance in Cambodia: conflicting perceptions

Claes Lindahl

Introduction	123
The art and the science of evaluation	124
Origins of the mission and the selection of the team	126
Coping with the Terms of Reference	130
Not developing a methodology	133
The narrow time frame	135
Fieldwork	136
Report writing	138
Lessons for humanitarian assistance evaluation	139
Conclusions: more of science, but still mostly art	149

Chapter Five - Doing study 3 of the Joint Evaluation of Emergency Assistance to Rwanda: the team leader's perspective

John Borton

Introduction	152
Landing the contract	159
Losing the Team Leader and starting work	161
Assembling the team	167
Backup and support issues	174
Fieldwork methods	176
Preparing the draft report	183
Preparing the final report	193
Follow up	200
Some concluding comments	202

Chapter Six – Mission possible: six years of emergency food aid in West Africa; policy not operations, as the credibly evaluable issue

Raymond Apthorpe

Introduction	211
Team composition	213
Team dynamics	217
Terms of Reference and field reality	221
Relations with out client's country directors	228
Fighting false socio-political assumptions and the limitations of consultancy	231
Getting from evidential findings to conclusions and then policy recommendations	235
Briefings and debriefings in Rome and in-country	241
An independent evaluation?	247
A final proposition	248

Chapter Seven - Review of the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies' Tajikistan programme

Peter Wiles

Background	253
Context for the review	255
Setting up the review	257
Preparations before the fieldwork	260
The fieldwork	261
Functioning of the team	263
Debriefing	264
Writing the report	265

Report and its follow-up	266
Reflections	269
Chapter Eight - A self evaluation of experience reviewing Australia's official assistance in response to the 1997 - 1998 Papua New Guinea drought
David A M Lea
Introduction	273
Setting up the evaluation team and formation	275
Contracts	277
Terms of Reference	278
Briefings	282
Developing methodology	283
Selection of study areas	286
Undertaking fieldwork	287
Team coherence	289
Relations with the commissioning agents	291
Writing the report	292
Reflections on the review process	300
Chapter Nine - An experimental and inclusive approach to evaluation as a lesson-learning tool: the URD Group work on the post Hurricane Mitch emergency
François Grunewald, Claire Pirotte and Véronique de Geoffroy
Origin of the work	314
Initiation of the programme	315
Work of the Task Force	316
The period prior to the mission	319
The mission	326
After the mission	333
Conclusions	344
Chapter Ten - UNICEF/DFID joint evaluation of UNICEF's Kosovo emergency preparedness and response
John Telford
Introduction	353
The 1999 Kosovo crisis and UNICEF strategy	357
Setting up the evaluation and recruiting the team	360
Starting work - reviewing the TOR and planning	362
Field methods and organization	365
Fieldwork	369
Team dynamics	374
Coming to a team position	376
Writing up - modus operandi	378
Debriefing and finalisation	382
Reflections on method and process	388
Chapter Eleven: Conclusions
The Editors
Introduction	394
The diversity of the studies	395
Lessons for the practicalities of 'doing' humanitarian evaluations	413

Improving the approach to humanitarian evaluations	432
References	440
About Contributors
Index	